

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A device for side impact detection for a motor vehicle, a side impact being detected using a distance sensor. The distance sensor is preferably designed as an optical sensor, the transmitting power of the optical sensor being adjusted by an initial measuring procedure at the start of operation and by a control circuit during operation.

436833